TERRIFIC TODDLERS

NOTES

Happy New Year! I don't know about you all, but I am so thrilled that it is 2018! As a new year begins, we would like to encourage you to review the handbook. The rules we implement at our center help to keep all children safe and happy. Please help us maintain our high standards by following the guidelines we provide. If you have any questions, always feel free to email me.

Cold and flu season is among us, so with that in mind, be sure to review our illness policies. We want all of the children in our center to remain happy and healthy.

The new year marks many things, but I want you to inform me of any resolutions, questions, or concerns you might have for your child. I want us to reach all of our educational and developmental goals together, and communicating effectively is the most efficient and healthy way for us to ensure the best possible future for your child.

As a part of the New Year, I will be working diligently to ensure that all licensing rules and guidelines are met. This means food being appropriately labeled, water bottles returning home daily, and all bedding returning home weekly. I will do my best to remind you of these rules until they become second nature. If any of you ever have any questions about licensing or would like to know more, please feel free to contact me.

I know that many of you are aware, but our center is now partnered with the ASQ. This is an excellent resource for anyone who is curious where their child stands developmentally. There are also links to information and contacts who can help you if you have any concerns about your child's results. It is important to remember that resources like this exist solely for your child's benefit. It is not intended to diagnose or judge, so please, if you have any questions about the ASQ or want links to similar resources, please let me know.
